

CONSTITUTIONAL ABUSERS.

An enterprising metropolitan vendor of patent trusses conceived the brilliant idea of using notoriety and securing a position on the list of the most famous of the world by publishing his replies to imaginary letters from Rev. H. W. Beecher, who had been addressed by the public in a letter which was republished in the Boston Herald. The vendor would confer a public benefit by clapping on the most notorious impostors of the world.

The Democrat is evidently aware of this experiment as its method of conducting a discussion is based on the same principle. Engaged in the responsible task of furnishing a standard of political conduct to a humbled and ailing people, who have been looking for a leader, the Democrat is not likely to be deceived by the tactics of a man who would confer a public benefit by clapping on the most notorious impostors of the world.

The Albany Evening Journal learns by its circulation in the Western papers that Governor Hoffman and his friends have sought, and have been successful in, a bargain with the Albany Evening Journal. The bargain is that the Albany Evening Journal will not appear as a candidate for President in the next Democratic National Convention. The bargain is also that the Albany Evening Journal will not appear as a candidate for President in the next Democratic National Convention.

RIGHT AND POOR.
My dear little girl with flowers in your hair,
staying a moment, and look over here,
With treasure of silver and tresses of gold,
From the dawn of the morning till the night,
With your mother, and father, and brother,
And her heart is a flower in my hair.

But now she is lying, so lonely and poor,
For father and mother are in the door,
And she is alone, and her heart is so sad,
And she is alone, and her heart is so sad,
And she is alone, and her heart is so sad,
And she is alone, and her heart is so sad.
